Conclusion

The Campus Events Calendar system is an integrated information management platform designed to improve the dissemination of information and student engagement in campus events. By providing students and staff with centralized management and access to activity information, the system solves the problems of scattered information dissemination and cumbersome booking process, effectively improving the information dissemination efficiency of campus activities and the participation of students. The simplified appointment process and real-time feedback mechanism not only improve the user experience, but also provide important support for the organization of faculty and staff events. The system makes an important contribution to building a more dynamic and interactive campus environment.
